Q: Quadratic

equations A cube with 18 squares is placed on a table. Then 4 small squares are taken out of the cube, all these squares have the same area. The area of the four small squares is 3 times that of the cube. Find the total number of small squares that can be taken out of the cube. I managed to get this equation:

$$(n+3)^2 = 18 \cdot 4 \implies n = 15$$

$\implies \text{total number of small squares} = 15$

What I am not able to figure out is, how did I get this equation? A: Let the area of a square be S . The area of the original cube is S^3 The area of each of the four small squares is $3S$ Hence $S^3 = 3S$, so $S = \frac{3}{4}S$, which implies $S = \frac{1}{4}S^2$ Therefore $S=4$. Remember how good it felt to not care what the neighbors thought of your refrigerator, and only care what YOU thought? You can always think that even though the puppy has stolen your beloved air filter, but there's no telling how the rest of the house might be suffering while you're locked in your kitchen, just thinking of love and harmony. Is this why that crazy, redneck neighbor across the street keeps shooting your dog's tennis ball at your foot, whenever you step out the back door? Is he trying to keep up the spirits of your poor, lonely household by filling the empty

 License FreeQ: Prolog - list of data for the identical variables Suppose I have the following predicate: $\text{check}(L, V) :- L =$ $[X, Y, Z|T], V = [1, 2, 3], X = Y = Z.$ If I pass an input of $\text{check}([0, 0, 0|T], [1, 1, 1]).$ it says that the input cannot be solved. However, I'm trying to make it so if it turns out that the variables are identical, i.e. $X = Y = Z,$ then there's no need for the second step, which evaluates for false. So basically I'm looking for the term $X = Y = Z$ instead of false. How would I write that? A: One way would be to translate your predicate into the following:
 $\text{check}([X, Y, Z|T], [V|_]) :- (X == Y -> V =$
 $[X|Z] ; X \neq Y -> T = [Z|_] ; X > Y -> T =$
 $[_|Z] ; Y > X -> T = [_|Z] ; X = Y = Z -> T = [] ; X$

$\neq Y \rightarrow T = [Z]$;
