All information is based on the currently released information. As we previously mentioned, the game will focus on shared play and simulation elements. To this end, we have strived to implement meaningful online play that gives you the opportunity to have fun playing together with others, for example by having enemy creatures flee due to the appearance of friendly characters. This creates the impression that the players are actually out and about, and the theme of the game feels more alive. The novel is a story that follows the adventures of an enigmatic character with mystical abilities and a wide range of powers derived from the Elden Ring and the Scriptures. The story revolves around the fact that this character and his comrades travel between the real world and the Lands Between. While the characters are on their adventure, various events take place, as the characters participate in various events, endure quests, and solve problems. The theme of the story is centered on the lands that are located between the real world and the Lands Between, which are separated by a thick and bizarre fog known as Tarnish. Q: RegEx replace MultiLine StringIgnoreCase I need to find and replace these:

Value

. . . to:

New Text

The problem is that the line below the previous paragraph can be multi-line so it can look like:

. . . Some other text. Here is another line. . . .

so i need to only replace the paragraph that is above the next paragraph that is also, but if the next paragraph does have the same text as above i need to leave it. also, i need to add a space after the date. This is what i have so far: Search Pattern = "

\r "; String replaced = Model.Text.ToString().Replace(SearchPattern, ""); I am not super advanced with RegEx but i am running out of ideas on how to do this. Thanks for your help. A: You could use something like this: string replacement = Regex.Replace(input, @"

(?.+)

\r ", "

$1

\r "); Addendum: If you want to replace the above with text

New Text

regardless of the preceding paragraph, then you can either: Regex.Replace(input, @"

(?.+)

\r ", @"

New Text

\r "); or Regex.Replace(input, @"

(?.+)

\r ", "

New Text

\r "); Charles E. Smith (baseball)

I've got a React application, and I'd like the HTML page to be updated immediately when my package.json file is changed, as opposed to the component's built file changing and then refreshing the page upon each build. I know that ReactHMR uses [hot-loader] for this, but the tutorial is pretty in-depth, and I'm wondering if there is another way to accomplish this? A: To achieve this kind of hot reload you could use webpack on the client side. With the package webpack-dev-server you can develop your application in the browser and hot reload with every change. npm i webpack-dev-server Then add this to your webpack.config.js: devServer: { contentBase: 'dist', host: '0.0.0.0', port: 8080 } This will start a webpack dev server for your client side application. To use it type in your browser: localhost:8080 Or if you're inside React development environment: For more info have a look at: For hot reload you need to update react-hot-loader
