From the sound of it, Dragon Quest XI is being built on the Unreal Engine 4. Unknown what changed over the last year that would make them switch to UE4, but this is the first official confirmation of it.

It is not clear how they plan to do consoles games yet. I read some believe that it will use a modified version of Unreal Engine 4, similarly to what happened with XSEED who translated Dragon Quest XI to Switch.

Square-Enix president, Yoichi Wada recently stated that they plan to release a new Dragon Quest game in the next 10 years. Perhaps that news will be revealed this year.
