“HyperMotion Technology” introduces to the FIFA series a player state system allowing, for the first time, players to be completely immersed in a unique FIFA experience. Rationale for the introduction of this technology is the desire to create a complete football experience, as any football simulation will never match the total football experience. With the use of our latest state-of-the-art motion capture technology, players can be accurately recreated and react to all the game-changing moments on the pitch, including players who are out of position, sprinting on the pitch or heading a ball. In addition, many high-profile players from the world’s leading football clubs have given their consent to participate in the project and to lend their support to the development of HyperMotion technology. Adapted for each player, the motion-capture data is extracted and processed by a bespoke artificial intelligence (AI). It is then applied to gameplay, using player models, animations and physics to create a range of game-changing features such as acceleration, heading, sprinting, bouncing off the pitch, or bending. In-game realism is a strategic weapon for players. This allows them to act on their imagination and set up chances that simply wouldn’t be possible in real life. This is FIFA 22’s biggest technological leap forward. With the introduction of its latest motion capture technology, the team at EA SPORTS has been able to apply the state-of-the-art technology to the most in-depth and immersive experience of a football simulation ever created. With “HyperMotion Technology,” FIFA 22 allows gamers to take on the role of superstar players, either in a realistic world or an innovative world where players are more than just that – they have a life, they’re funny, they make mistakes, they get angry, they laugh and they cry, they get hurt, they celebrate and they miss. What is also new is the introduction of “Variations” in real-time, allowing fans to play how they want to play, against the opponents who want to play the same way, on any pitch they want, in any environment they want – in their own time. By understanding this technology, fans of football can create their own brand of football for the FIFA series by assigning their own formation and style and choosing the tactics they want to use. WHAT TO EXPECT IN FUT
