Q: is it possible to print contact list from iphone to printer? i have an iphone app which prints various parts of an operation's record. My app prints a timecard with a list of employee's phone numbers, and it also prints a list of customers phone numbers and their order, employees and employees phone numbers, order and order number, a print order summary with employee phone numbers and a list of the items the order contains. I don't know if I should be creating a new queue each time a record needs to be printed or if it is alright to store the data into each one of the Records I'm printing. A: Yes, you should place the data into the Print Queue. You can change the settings so that it prints only one Queue, or you can configure your Print Queue to print from one or multiple (up to ten at one time) databases. Q: Media query NOT working in mobile browser I have a mobile/tablet width media query that breaks the page, which I thought was working. It was hiding and all that good stuff but it wasn't responsive. Then when I went to make a mobile device only portfolio I noticed that my custom media query was not working in the mobile browser. I tested in chrome and android, each one of them gave a different error. They gave the same error in chrome so I don't know which one was the culprit. But they both gave this error: 'Media was not loaded in time for the browser to start rendering.' I also tried removing the media query and it showed my

I want to show that if  $f: A \rightarrow B$  is a bijection, then  $f^{-1}(a)$  is an isolated point of  $B$  My Solution: Let  $f^{-1}(a_0) \in A$  and  $a_0 \in B$  Now we can prove that  $f(f^{-1}(a_0)) = a_0$  Let  $f(f^{-1}(a_0)) = f(p) = b$  So  $p \in f^{-1}(b)$  and  $f^{-1}(b)$  is the set of points that can be mapped by  $f$  into  $b$ . Then  $p \in f^{-1}(b)$  So  $b \in f(f^{-1}(a_0))$  and so  $f(f^{-1}(a_0)) \supseteq a_0$  Then  $b \in a_0$  So  $a_0$  is an isolated point. Now my question: Is my proof is correct? Is the converse is true? A: Let  $f(a_0) = b_0$ ,  $f^{-1}(b_0) = a_0$ . Then  $b_0 = f(a_0) = f(f^{-1}(b_0)) = f$
