Q: I need to solve the following Max Function with constraints I have been trying to find a way to solve the following optimization problem from Wolfram Alpha: It states the solution, but I just have no idea how to express it using math. Can anyone help, or at least explain why their solution has those constraints. A: The first problem reduces to solving $3x+y-1=0$, for which there are many solutions:

$x,y,z=\left(-1,\frac{1}{3},\frac{3}{5}\right)$ The second problem is equivalent to solving $x^2+y^2+z^2+4x-2y=0$ $x^2+y^2=\frac{2}{7}$ The solutions to $x^2+y^2=\frac{2}{7}$ are $\pm\frac{\sqrt{7}}{7}$. Not only does seeing wildlife mean you can up your Instagram engagement, but it also means more people are getting outside for nature photos. According to a study done by the National Wildlife Federation, more people (about 63 percent) took nature photos from smartphones in 2017 than in 2016. This is the highest single-year increase since the study started in 2012. More people are realizing what a treasure nature truly is; and not only are they adding more and more nature photos to their Instagram feeds, but they're also posting with a bigger purpose. Research from the NWF found that more than half (54 percent) of nature photographers say that seeing wildlife makes them feel more connected to nature; and another 16 percent say it makes them want to protect the natural world. There are some species that are just easier to photograph than others, however, says Alan Korn, president and CEO of the NWF. "Birds are very approachable; they're very tolerant of people and they'll come right up to you and hover around," he says. "That's one of the most iconic, approachable species." So if you've got an iPhone that you're comfortable with, you could easily spot some wildlife by following these 10 tips. Make it easy. Take your time walking through the woods and make sure you're giving yourself time to get comfortable, even if you have to spend a few days. Wildlife adapts to being observed and photographed, so letting

1. Field of the Invention This invention relates to an apparatus for detecting the elongation of a wound, a relaxed spool and a ribbon having a plurality of segments of successive different lengths of different colors, the color segments representing the characters or the like to be printed on a sheet of paper. 2. Description of the Prior Art If the amount of printing on a sheet of paper is to be regulated automatically, as is the case in an electrophotographic printing apparatus, for example, the amount of printing on a sheet of paper must be regulated in accordance with the elongation of a spool, i.e., the amount of printing on a sheet of paper must be detected in accordance with the elongation of a spool which has been wound with a ribbon having a plurality of segments of successive different lengths of different colors. The conventional apparatus for detecting the elongation of a wound spool for a ribbon of different lengths of the successive different colors requires a complicated structure. Thus, the conventional apparatus cannot be applied to an electrophotographic printing apparatus requiring compactness and light weight.
