filmsNote: When I first began taking senna, I had a flair up of what I suspected was hyperthyroidism.
I was on thyroid replacement, and an endocrinologist told me he thought it was internal consumption of the drug. Another symptom was total body burning - e.g. like I was on fire, my entire body would be burning, but I would not even be feeling it. I'm on epinephrine at this time (I'm keeping it in my purse), and I haven't experienced this since I stopped taking it, which was three weeks ago. Hi Mac, Welcome to sennapedia! I use desmopressin (a.k.a. DDAVP) for my HT problems and I personally find it quite effective. I've noticed a couple of things that you haven't mentioned, though. First, after taking it on a regular basis I now notice that I will sweat if I am moderately hot (i.e. not boiling, just hot). The second is that I still experience the shaking (paresthesia) in my arms.
Update: One of the problems with DDAVP is that I'm always very thirsty. Not quite like a hangover, but it makes me want to drink copious amounts of water. I also experience a very dry mouth, a feeling of thirst, but I don't drink any more than usual. Ok, I have been taking Senna for the last seven days. Before that I was taking a pill that had vasopressin as part of it. I feel like I have more energy than ever before and I don't crave food, I can eat anything that is put in front of me
