" const checkUserCard = (): void => { if ( this.state.user.userData.isLogin && this.state.user.userData.userObj.id ) { return this.state.user.userData.userObj.id; } const ids = JSON.parse(localStorage.getItem('userCardId')); const id = ids.id; return id; }; Here in the condition, getting this error Property ". A: From what I can see, you have return this.state.user.userData.userObj.id; before the await statement, which means that id is of type Promise. To fix this error, wrap the return id; statement in a promise: const checkUserCard = (): void => { if ( this.state.user.userData.isLogin && this.state.user.userData.userObj.id ) { return this.state.user.userData.userObj.id; } const ids = JSON.parse(localStorage.getItem('userCardId')); const id = ids.id; return new Promise((resolve, reject) => { resolve(id); }); }; However, we don't want a promise, we want the actual id. The await keyword allows you to resolve a promise with the next value in the async function. Hence, await checkUserCard() c6a93da74d
