- A Chance to Play This Game: We need to be able to play this game!The artwork is a new take on the Idea of F.A.P. The Characters are in a different position. I don't want to give too much away, but you can find out more about the game here: Game "Finding A Prince: The Game" Website COPYRIGHT - REMEMBER TO CONTACT ME WITH YOUR CREDITS - PRIVATE LICENSE GAME The track is a total of 25 songs, each of which is 5:45 in length. The idea for the background for the tracks were from either the games original art or the covers of some of the album. Each song has a different piece of art and also a composition from our composer Geraint Downing. Some of the games were a bit tricky to find artwork, and sometimes I had to ask other people to help me find artwork. The lyrics are also written by Geraint. I am an amateur at composing music, and I probably spent more time finding the artwork for the songs and writing the lyrics to some of the songs rather than working on the composition and mixing the songs down. I am very proud of this track, and I hope the person who purchases it will enjoy the soundtrack for Finding A Prince: The Game. A big THANK YOU to Geraint Downing for the music! x Here is the file you will download. They will be in a Zip file, so you will need to extract them. : The First Air Combat Game Frog Fighters: The First Air Combat Game was a PC game developed by Canadian company Descendants and published by American company Flying Buffalo in North America, and by Electronic Arts in Europe and Japan. It came to the Game Boy Advance in North America and Europe in February 2005 and to the Xbox, PlayStation 2 and Nintendo DS on February 16, 2006 in North America, February 26, 2006 in Japan, and April 26, 2006 in Europe. In this game, different frog team are picked and are required to build up their own country out of a wasteland using their special battle skills and technology. The game includes the series' first sports game, as well as five interchangeable pieces that represent different continents. The game received mixed reviews, mostly praising its simple graphics and gameplay, but criticizing its lack of variety and slow pace. Gameplay Much like earlier games in the series, the gameplay in this game is based on rounds, each of which contains three distinct stages: boss, battle, and basic. These stages are performed in turn, and are interspersed with character and country customizing. This game is the first appearance of the career and leveling systems that appear in later games in the series, with the game featuring multiple competitors, each with a different starting team. Player options include choosing a team, customizing their characters by choosing from different body types and costumes, customizing their weapons and aircrafts as well as their special attacks, and racing other teams for ranking points. While characters and teams are customizable in the initial character screen, during battle, each character can equip eight different weapons including special weapons such as missiles and bombers. Through a budgeting system, players can increase their territory and protect it from destruction. Gameplay is controlled by one or two players using a five-directional pad, or by using the control/directional pad and even the analog stick. The game features eight ranged weapons, four of which can be launched from the frog's hands. Setting Frog Fighters takes place in the future, after mankind has almost destroyed the planet. The wildlife on it has almost completely declined, leaving frogs to take its place on Earth. Each country is made of several different regions and provinces. Each frog has a different personality, and a distinct frog style can be bought using money earned for performing other actions during gameplay. There are three frog styles: Dancar, Hillbilly and Warrior
