A non-combat game, you guide a tribe through various phases and guide its population of natives. This is the only game where you can easily create a completely new prehistoric world, with lots of scope for your imagination. Explore the flanks of a Roman/ Barbarian/ Saxon/ Hunnic Empire to find the best place to build your settlement. Decide to settle in a backwater jungle, a marshland delta, or a riverbank – and watch your tribe of natives grow and thrive. As their leader, you have to achieve the following:

- Trade – you must trade with the natives to produce new technologies, to increase the depth of your settlement, to unlock resources, and to obtain renown.
- Culture – your people will have to learn how to build temples, build settlements, or raise defenses if the Romans come for the kill.
- Defense – your people need to craft tools to protect their tribe from attacks by Rome or from the barbarian hordes, attack the Roman legions and win the day. The question is not 'Can you do it?' but 'Will you do it?' Features: The core of your Tribe is composed of various types of Natives. Each race has its own unique ability - reflecting their origin - Bronze Age humans, Barbarians, Romans, Saxons, Huns... Different types of Natives have different levels of fame, magic, science, population, and health. Each time you play, the surrounding area of the continent will have its own dynamic. While you wait for your tribe to settle into a good region, you can increase your ranks by recruiting new Natives to your tribe. Utilize the Quarry and Master Craftsman for your first stone tool, and pillage the ruins of a fallen civilization to gather its decorative shards. Has your tribe reached its maximum population size? Add more Natives to the fold! Develop a Trade route, a settlement, and a culture to improve the economic and technological strength of your tribe. Govern your people wisely, or they will turn into rebels. Work your way up the ladder of power to become a Warrior King. Take on the other players in a free-for-all brawl, where death is the only way to win the day. Replay your game 10 times to see how far you can take your tribe. Download and play the trial version

Production Inc. is a very difficult 2D puzzle game. You will have to think many, many steps ahead to keep your production lines operating efficiently, organise your factory and keep your company afloat. Production Inc. is a factory management game. You will run your factory on the simulator. The scenario will be set so that you will be producing a product that has to be delivered on time to a client who has paid you a fair price. You will try to complete the work to the best of your ability, after all it's your money at stake. REVIEWS:

Gameplay: You run your company in order to make money. To do this you must fulfil your contracts. You run a factory with lots of different production lines. When there is no more room on the production line, your workers will stop working. You need to wait for the workers to get back on to the line before you can produce another object. Your workers will work 2 hour shifts and will go to sleep once they have been working for 2 hours. You buy and build equipment to keep your factories operating and you keep working hard to meet the demands of your customers. You can generate leads by visiting clients. You can bid to supply your factory with necessary parts to keep it working efficiently. There are 6 different factories. Each of the factories has its own unique attributes and individual inventory. Collecting parts: You can collect parts by visiting clients who have placed an order. You will make as much money as you can to pay your debts. You can hold on to part until your ordered to send it and then sell it at a profit. Quality: You must try to fulfil your contracts and be as efficient as possible with your production lines. If you do not you will struggle to keep your company afloat and you will not be able to pay your debts. You can cut corners and make things quicker but the quality will be lower. Your employees will work overtime. You must keep your workers happy so they will not go on strike. You can dismiss your workers at anytime. You can fire your workers if they are unhappy or if they are not working. If your

When it comes to news the timing is everything. This used to be truer in translation as word got around fast - but now we have the internet the difference between being first and last is nothing compared to the difference between being second and last. Because we all have a radar now - and many of us have as sharp a sense of smell. So it was that you would have had three chances to get this across. Three pretty good chances too, one being in the last hour; one a quiet Saturday in November a few months ago, and one a live interview. And yet I still never got the balance right. So on reflection, and with pageviews down in translation, there never was a gap to fill. I just made too much of a story, and too little of a capital 'T'. And so, merely an hour after the formal announcement of big news - the news that will surely be the last game of the season - I write this. The Really Big News of Sport, and News as History The words "There is no need to apologise" - Baku, 2016. Baku was an absolutely extraordinary tournament. A new stadium, a new rule, a new culture. Sponsorship deals announced, bodies gone, and champions emerged. It truly was a unique occasion. And it might be the last of its kind. And a brief look at the calendar tells you much: the next big event is a Super Bowl in Mexico in February 2017. Then we have the Winter

Olympics in Pyeongchang in 2018 - and the World Cup in South Africa in June 2019. With so few trophies in the past year and so few jitters in markets already debating who should be favourite to host, they seemed too close together. The way to exploit this space, surely - the need to announce quickly, before the range of potential hosts has filled out - was to close the gap a bit. The UAE was insistent, the US close by. But the size of the prize just made it hard to resist. For that reason the news was big. The scale is bigger still - 12 cities, 40 commercial partners. American cities have never failed to get on the map, despite the Cup having been so new. In the 1990's and 2000's, the sport was spread around the Western World, and America was the place to make
