Available for PC, MAC, Xbox One, and PS4.The Academy of Interactive Arts and Sciences recently unveiled new game awards, including a Lifetime Achievement Award and a Board of Trustees Distinguished Achievement Award. These two awards were given to the members of the Academy's Board of Trustees that have been active game developers for a period of at least 10 years and/or have been involved in the development or design of at least five games with a score of 84 or higher on the Metacritic. While other lifetime achievement awards have been given at various industry events, including the 2011 Spike TV Video Game Awards, the AIAS-presented award recognizes the dedicated effort, hard work and outstanding contributions to the game development community over a long period of time. The 2014 AIAS Awards, hosted by actor Seth Green at the University of Southern California's Galen Center in Los Angeles, took place on October 27, 2014. The Board of Trustees is composed of people from all over the industry, including leading game developers, publishers, publishers and retailers. "We are very proud to honor our game developers who have sacrificed time, sweat and tears making games for the past 10 years," stated AIAS President, Bruce Campbell. "The majority of these people dedicate themselves to the industry because of their love for this creative medium. The
