The ADSI Test Tool helps determine the overall ADSI support of a server. All of the LDAP-related filters that are included in this tool are also included in a separate testing tool that is included with the Microsoft Windows 2000 Resource Kit. LDAP Test Lab: [90,000,000 LDAP queries in a 30 minute file] The LDAP Test Lab (LDAP Test Tool) offers an unlimited number of matches in a file, offers a tested method for searching for results to test for ADSI support, and offers a path for accessing the LDAP result set (such as the database of data for successful queries). The LDAP Test Lab results from this tool are used for the original Graphical User Interface testing tool. Note: This tool is not designed for testing against an Active Directory Distributed Directory Services (AD DS) forest. Features: -Browse the LDAP result set for collection of successful queries from previous LDAP Test Tool tests. -Browse the LDAP result set for new queries. -Browse the LDAP result set for queries that do not return results. -Browse the LDAP result set for queries that return no results. -If you highlight a result, the result will be automatically selected, so you don't have to click and highlight. -Supports date calculations. -The LDAP results are shown as a comma-separated value (CSV) file. You can open this file with any spreadsheet application. However, for a more user-friendly interface, you can also use any spreadsheet to view the results as a table. The ADSI Test Tool will open with the default query WinNT://computername (where computername is the name of your own computer). You can enter your own query in this field. Click the "Test Query" button to populate the Results fields. The results of new queries are appended to previous results. Click the "Clear Results" button to clear the fields if you don't want to keep previous results. The "Clear Query" button clears the Query field, you may also just select the text in this field and press Backspace or Del on the keyboard. You can start new queries based on the result of previous queries. Play with it, it's safe to query, but be careful with advanced LDAP commands. ADSI Test Tool Description: The ADSI Test Tool helps determine the overall ADSI support of a server. All
