Hello, I am finally back on Elden Ring after a few weeks. I plan to blog one of my favorite games, A Voice In the Gran Pulse. I am slowly working on Quindine, another game I made. Quindine is a frozen world with no events. When people die on a free-world they go to the next world called 'Quindine' where they can reincarnate.

Story: This is a Japanese game that came out in 2003. It was a 2.5D Platform RPG that uses anime cut scenes and gameplay. The song "Gran Pulse" the main theme used in the ending credits was written and sung by Ayumi Hamasaki and her band Speed-Tec. The lyrics were written by Shogo Ishinomori. This game was my first step in making a Japanese RPG. Also it is the first game I made while I was 17-18 years old.

What's new in Elden Ring:

THE SEASONING SYSTEM MAY NOT WORK PROPERLY FOR SOME PORTIONS OF THE GAME. When the Seasoning System is used, various items found in the game will cause characters to become more "seasoned." This may lead to some unexpectedly large shifts in character development in some parts of the game when enhanced by the Seasoning System. You may find that characters with lower levels of skill are suddenly transformed when they are "seasoned."

THE SEASONING SYSTEM

1) The Seasoning System is a support function that is connected to the Action Points (APs). APs are collected in advance by defeating monsters. Different magic and skills may require different APs. First, we must have encountered the monster. To make monsters more formidable, we have modified the monster so that the monster will ask for larger amounts of APs. Decreasing the monsters' chance to ask for APs will result in an increased feeling of satisfaction when you defeat them. If you have not yet attained the minimum level to attack them, you cannot attack them. If you successfully defeat them, you obtain APs. APs can be collected after defeating monsters. You can use them when using the required skills. The skill you use may change the attack points. APs cannot be refunded. APs consumed when using the skill change the chance of the battles by one third. If the chance for the battles increases, the enemy AP is decreased. If the chance for the battles decreases, the enemy AP is increased. In addition, when the Combat feature is activated, the "Auto Finish" option is automatically selected. We consider this to be a feature that enhances the action of the game. By modifying the monster, we are making the game more enjoyable.

2) The APs you have before battle is the "AP investment." When you choose which skill to use and hit the hit button, you cannot use any skills during the process of using this equipped skill. If the combat ends while using it, the AP investment is increased. When you finish the battle without using an equipped skill with an AP investment of 9, there is a possibility of receiving a "Money Reward" of 5,000,000.
