Cpanel Whm 11 34 Nulled 19

patronny/IntraMDCP-Lite. I had done this for wordpress but was unable to get it to work. I have a fresh install of cpanel whm 11 34 nulled 19. I had the same issue upgrading from a previous version of cpanel and it was because I had an old version of php installed. I found this via this thread: Cpanel WHM : $install-root not recognized Jul 19 12:00:00 servername.com php[1234]: file (php) function, how to get certain keys as well? I just tried this: $path = "test.txt"; $lines = file($path); var_dump($lines); And got this result: array(1) { [0]=> string(11) "bla bla text" } So, if I access to a file and if I want to get all characters in it or the first 4 characters (before the "bla bla"), then how can I do that? Is there any particular function for that? A: First of all, the file($path) in your example looks like it's a typo; the correct syntax is file($path, FILE_IGNORE_NEW_LINES). This way you can read a file into an array, skipping over the first line and all other empty lines. Then, if you want to access the first line, the first character or the first four characters, then you should use the $array[0] element of the array you get from file($path, FILE_IGNORE_NEW_LINES), or, as Jason suggested in his comment, you can use the $array[0][0] element. If you're asking for a method to get the first 4 characters in the first line of a file, then I'm afraid that there is no such method. But there is a method called substr, that, if given the number of characters you want to retrieve, will return them, from the first character to the number of characters you gave: substr('this is a test', 3) would return 'this is a'. A: I would use this: $path = "test.txt"; $lines = file($path, FILE_IGNORE_NEW_LINES); // the following snippet would return the first 4 char $lines[0] = substr($lines
