President Donald Trump on Monday made his strongest commitment yet to building a wall on the U.S.-Mexico border. "I think we will get it, I really do," he said in an interview with The Associated Press and "Fox & Friends." "I think we're going to get it," he said. "It's not going to be as easy as people think. But I think we will get it done." President Trump makes his strongest commitment yet to building a border wall with Mexico pic.twitter.com/zsccDgfCst — The Associated Press (@AP) January 8, 2018 Trump on Monday also claimed he did not use his personal email to conduct White House business, as a government watchdog organization alleged this week. The watchdog organization, Citizens for Responsibility and Ethics in Washington, or CREW, sent Trump a letter on Monday accusing him of the violation. "I use it almost exclusively — I have it set up so I can only check emails on that particular device," Trump told AP. The AP reported that Trump's transition team had to respond to the letter after Trump wrote on Twitter that the watchdog organization was "totally biased." AP reported: In a letter sent earlier Monday, CREW told Trump that the violation is "a serious matter." CREW Vice President for
