Ask HN: Please review my MVP - ricw (edited)In a nutshell, my app is intended to be the perfect 'portfolio' for a single person. If you're a web dev, you'd use it as a portfolio site. If you're an artist, it would be a collection of images, linked to song lyrics, grouped in categories for ease of use. Imagine two Wordpress blogs side-by-side, each of them with it's own page. You'd use this app to browse between the blogs.Django/Python/Backbone/Marionette/Adobe AIR.Site url: 'm posting this to ask for some feedback before I start developing the app. ====== micahyellow I'm not a web developer, so I don't know much about portfolio sites, but you don't really explain what the difference is between this and ~~~ ricw The difference is that MyApp is based on well known web technologies whereas lyrwd is based on code I wrote in a weekend. The present invention relates to an automatic and semi-automatic vehicle following control device which is arranged to control the vehicle to keep a required distance from a vehicle on ahead, in order to follow it while traveling in a lane. A conventional vehicle following control device is arranged to determine a required distance to follow a vehicle ahead, and a deviation of this distance from the required distance, by a computer which is provided separately from the vehicles on the front and rear sides of the device. Then, the device is so arranged that a steering angle is varied in accordance with this deviation. However, the conventional device has a drawback in that the computer requires a relatively large power to determine the required distance and the deviation, and also requires a long computation time to carry out the processing. Consequently, the computation time required to process the requests from a large number of vehicles, as is the case with an intersection
