August 6, 2009 No additional passwords are needed as it uses your Windows administrator account. Free your network from remote management software with... In this situation, you may be prompted to double-check your LAN account password. After entering all the necessary settings, click the OK button, and then the Save button located at the bottom of the settings window (Fig. 6.5). As in the previous case, we will need to create a local account, and then connect it to the network. Create a local account named Administrator and select Edit → Local Users and Groups → Add User from the menu (Fig. 6.6).
