Project X 2 3. Be Right Back 4. Happy Death Day 5. When a new offender has been assessed and categorised, the needs and goals of the offender are then discussed by the offender's team, the local GPs, and the offender, resulting in a treatment plan for the offender. This treatment plan is then followed by the offender's treatment team and is detailed in the report. The assessment and treatment process were shown to take between 2 to 5 hours depending on the volume of information to sift through. Key results 61% of the report is made up of information from interviews and questionnaires; 87% of offenders in the study were assessed and treated in less than 4 weeks and 75% of these in less than 3 weeks; Offenders that were re-admitted to custody within 90 days of a scheduled release (time served) were more likely to have an expressed desire to be transferred to a higher level of custody; There was a lower recidivism rate for those assigned to a highly-structured program compared to those assigned to a medium-structured program (34.6% vs 47.4%); Predictive value of cyclin A expression for lung recurrence and survival in women with stage I-IIIa non-small cell lung cancer. Cyclin A is overexpressed in more than 50% of lung cancers and is considered a specific and reliable marker for assessment of the proliferative activity of lung tumors. We have investigated the prognostic significance of cyclin A in stage I-IIIa non-small cell lung cancer (NSCLC). Formalin-fixed, paraffin-embedded tumor samples from 204 patients who had undergone surgical resection for stage I-IIIa NSCLC were included in the study. Immunohistochemical staining was performed with anti-cyclin A antibody, and correlations between cyclin A expression and clinicopathological variables were determined. Survival data were obtained from the National Cancer Institute database. Cyclin A expression was correlated with a number of clinicopathological variables
