[Distribution of seasonal influenza vaccination in Germany: analysis of data by federal states]. In the current influenza season in Germany, the percentage of vaccinations amongst people aged 65 years and older increased from 20.9% in 2014 to 37.9% in 2016. The European Centre for Disease Prevention and Control recommends that the vaccination rate for people over 65 years is at least 50% to reduce the risk of an influenza-related death. This study aimed to estimate the vaccination rate in Germany during the winter seasons in 2015-2016 by federal state. For this purpose, data were collected from a comprehensive national registry of the Robert Koch Institute. The data were compared with vaccination rates for individuals over 65 years from the regional health authorities in Germany. The analysis showed that the vaccination rate ranged from 17.1% to 68.4% (mean, 47.5%) for people over 65 years. It was highest in Bavaria, Hesse, Lower Saxony, Schleswig-Holstein and North Rhine-Westphalia. The vaccination rate was lowest in the Saarland, Rhineland-Palat

Functional expression of endothelial nitric oxide synthase in rat mesangial cells. In the present study, we investigated the expression and functional significance of endothelial nitric oxide synthase (eNOS) in mesangial cells. The level of eNOS messenger RNA (mRNA) in rat mesangial cells was determined by Northern blot analysis. Phorbol ester (PMA)-induced expression of eNOS mRNA was examined by Northern blotting and in situ hybridization. Nitric oxide (NO) formation was evaluated by measuring nitrite accumulation in the
