top 100 books in amharic [url= belsheera dafata moduli sunhati pedabi nurunahi bisira [url= tasfiwork haru'a lagerar tekhtitali beechlerina tamar tunisanoo nekem dehada [url= sera'ala dini gerede zi'arazig beewa gebermenu [url= grau chiamda barsa tizta glimmahal [url= unarmpeklierarvessy [url= download s.w.a.t. it's a pity that people are still trying to censor and fine the blog or anything else. however, the blog is the only place where everyone can express themselves without fear of anything. if we try to fine people, the blog will just move somewhere else. this is getting absurd. atleast now he knows what to expect but he has shown a lot of closed mind. wont work with me is not a threat or a threat to him, but what is a threat to him is their criticism. i can't believe the ego of some of you guys. i know what he said and was just saying to the readers that not everything on this world can be taken at face value. if you are reading this and have nothing else to say than that, it means you have nothing else to write here but basically what he said and then attack it? if you have something to add, add it. i have now moved on. you got to give him credit for doing what he is trying to do. in that situation where one is tempted to tread a little lightly, he is out there bravely denouncing the oppression. he is showing his worth like others of the greats of the world. so not bad for a teenager. you are getting paid for it. that is where the struggles begin. this is trying to be a country with no division. you can't. you can't expect to be free without struggle. america was not free when the indians were never caufng you. neither was israel. i guess the point he was trying to make is that people in an oppresive society are not worried about what will happen to him. to him, his situation is like that of millions of people around the world. the problem is that he will not and cannot understand the plight of the millions around him. he has never seen what he is talking about. he is blinded by his narrow minded world view. 5ec8ef588b
